The Wall of Lament

Are You Hurting? Do you need a tangible, physical way to express the pain in your heart and soul?

During the six-week sermon series on the book of Lamentations, we have a special response station available to us in the Worship Center---The Wall of Lament.

There are colored papers in the chair backs and at the tables near the Wall of Lament. Write out your lament--your cry, your hurt, your pain. It could be about a national or global issue that causes you anxiety. It could be about the suffering that someone else is going through. It could be about the hurt in your own life or family. Write it out, then roll it up and put it in the wall. As you do, ask God for healing, hope, and help. No one is going to read what you wrote except God.

Dear Highline Christian Church,
Thank you, so very much for the years you have supported and donated to this ministry! Together, we all are making a huge difference for advancing the Kingdom of God in our communities! Many inmates, ex-inmates, their families and children have been enormously encouraged by your donations to House of Hope Ministries. We could not do this WITHOUT YOU!! You are so appreciated for giving "unto the least of these my brethren." Many hands ...make light work!

Warmest blessings of Christ's Love,

...TOUCHING THE

Dear brothers and sisters of our mutual Lord and Savior Jesus the Christ,

Greetings from Coffee Country! 2016 is now in the history books and we've started on the new year granted to us by our Creator. We look forward to seeing how He will work in and through us in 2017.

Family Time

On December 3 our son Timothy arrived for a visit. He had not been back to Colombia since just before being deployed by the USMC to Japan in 2011. Unfortunately, his wife Paula was unable to accompany him due to a conflicting work schedule. It was with great joy we greeted him at Matecaña International Airport and the three weeks he spent with us and his friends in the area were a real blessing. He also managed to visit his grandparents in Medellin, taking his mother along as a surprise. They had quite an interesting trip as there were multiple landslides from the rains as well as at least one bad accident that tied up the highway for hours. The usual 5 hour trip lasted 9 hours, but they arrived safe and sound and had a great time.

Christmas in Colombia

Christmas is a big deal in Colombia. It falls at the end of the school year so there is plenty of opportunity for celebration by kids and adults alike. The season starts off with the celebration of the Immaculate Conception of Mary on December 8th. But, just like Christmas, the eve of the feast day is the big celebration here. It is known as "La Noche De Las Velitas" (The night of the candles) and is celebrated by a huge percentage of the population. People sit out in front of their houses and light candles which they typically place in elaborate paper lanterns on the sidewalk or even in the street. Kids run around with sparklers and families indulge in special treats.

Christmas Eve - Colombian Style

The 24th is the Big Celebration as they gather for a midnight dinner. At the stroke of midnight there is often a mass lighting of fireworks (which are illegal in most large cities - but omnipresent anyway) and the children open their gifts which are brought by "El Niño Dios" (The Child God).

Our Version

We were invited to celebrate with one family and were able to share with some of them about the "First Noel" according to God's Word and planted some gospel seeds. On the 24th we invited those who do not have family in the area to come to our place for an evening of snacks and table games. We took time to thank our heavenly Father for the Gift He gave to mankind so many years ago.

New Year's Eve - Colombian Style

New Year's Eve is another big event for Colombians. Once more they gather with family and friends and indulge in all kinds of rituals to provide good fortune for the coming year. From wearing the right color of underwear to eating 12 grapes at the stroke of midnight to dragging a suitcase around the block and burning incense in the home, many Colombians seek blessings for the new year - while forgetting to seek the Author of Life in first place.

Our Version

Once more we extended the invitation to gather at our place for snacks and board games. We fired up the grill and roasted the meat and ripe plantains. Just prior to midnight we took time to thank God for the blessings received (including the struggles and difficulties) during 2016 and to ask for His blessing in the coming year, concluding our prayer as fireworks (still forbidden, yet even more present than the week before) crackled and roared around the city.

THANK YOU!

2016 was a real blessing to us in many ways. We are humbled by your generous and faithful support of the work that Christ is doing through us here in Pereira. We continually see new ways in which Christ is working in different people's lives as we share the Gospel of His Grace with them. We are seeing seeds planted years ago still producing fruit and for this we praise God and thank Him for working through you to allow us to continue ministry here in Colombia. May 2017 be a year of great blessing in your own life and ministry as you continue to serve Christ in your corner of His great harvest field.

What are we to Believe?

By Lowell Hall

The words believe, believed, and belief appeared frequently in the Bible. In the New Testament these words have taken on new meaning because of the object of their action. Over and over believing is emphasized as essential in our relationship to God and to Jesus the Christ.

The article in the January Newsletter concerned "Hearing" as the first step in our path to Salvation. The message was the "Good News" of God's gift of His Son Jesus the Christ. Jesus experienced a miraculous birth, at the age of 30 years he committed Himself to proclaiming that "the kingdom of God is near," performed miracles of healing, and eventually was arrested, convicted, and executed. The great and marvelous event was His resurrection from the dead. His death on the cross was for our sins and made it possible for us to be forgiven by God. By God's great love and mercy we can have an eternal life after death with Him. This was the Good News that was proclaimed for everyone to "Hear."

Not everyone who hears the message about God and Jesus is ready to accept and respond. Jesus "Parable of the sower" clearly illustrates this point. (See: Mark 4:1-20).

It may take a long time for some people to begin to "Believe." Some Christians grow up in the church and over time they develop "Believing". For others, Belief comes later in life and under different circumstances.

What must we believe?

There are dozens of churches in our community and they have different sets of rules or beliefs which they feel are essential to salvation. In some churches you are required to "accept" and "live by their set of rules" in order to become a member of their church. Of course they point to Bible references as the authority for what they insist are essentials.

The New Testament does not have a list or set of rules. There are passages that set forth how we can come to God and live in this close relationship with Him. The closest statement setting forth what is essential is found in Romans. (Romans 10:9-10). It sets forth what we should believe and then what our response should be.

At the end of his sermons, Pastor Tim extends an invitation to anyone who desires to except Jesus Christ. When a person responds, Pastor Tim has them affirm a very simple statement.

"I believe that Jesus is the Christ the Son of the living God and I accept Him as my Lord and Savior."

Believing and affirming this statement has carried many of us one more step into Salvation with God.

Do you remember when you first believed in "Jesus as the Christ the Son of the living God?" What a glorious day that was when we came to believe that "Jesus was the Son of God and we eagerly wanted to accept Him as our Lord and Savior."

Sincere belief motivates a response. March's eNewsletter article will set forth the response which is "Repentance."

God Bless!

Reformed Reflections

Politics and Religion Come Face to Face By Brad Krantz

History was made recently in the inauguration of our 45th President, Donald J. Trump on Friday, January 20th. He's the oldest person ever elected; and a man who has never held public office before. He's been at the forefront of immense controversy throughout his campaign and resulting election, but is now our elected President. For the next 4 years, whether we, as Americans rejoice at this or are angry about it, we must live with this fact. Though I did not vote for him (or his opponent, Clinton), and had many reservations about his conduct and actions, I will accept him as our President and give him a chance to show forth his leadership. Here's why.

There has never before been such a polarizing event surrounding the transition of power to a new President. The subsequent protests and demonstrations have been troubling to say the least and also something we've never before seen in our country's history. Yet, as we within the Church – both visible and invisible – live and work within this tension and drama, let us be mindful of our calling: We are to be in prayer for our Nation, President, and for that matter, all our elected officials!

Franklin Graham quoted and prayed 1 Timothy 2:1-3ff, in his prayer following the Oath of Office: "Therefore I exhort first of all that supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all men, for kings and all who are in authority, that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and reverence..."

Easier said than done, but this is what we're called to do. First, we're exhorted to prayer and intercession for all men, king and all who are in authority. It does not direct us to what type of person(s) they are or what their conduct or actions must be. Then, we do this because it leads to us leading quiet and peaceable lives in all godliness and reverence. This is in stark contrast to the chaotic display of behavior of many protesters and rioters. While we may either like the outcome or be depressed about it, we as Christians, can and should be in prayer.

In a slightly different context, we had 36 Christian leaders who promoted a letter circulated prior to the inauguration titled, "Appeal to Christians Regarding President-Elect

*Donald Trump.*¹ While I personally think it was a bit of a double-standard given the composition and background of many of the petitioners, I would agree with their main thrust: "In these times of difficult conversations and sometimes fractious words, we celebrate the political diversity of our churches. We are thankful that the U.S. church is not beholden to any political party." They offered 5 points in the way of prayer:

1. We will pray for President-elect Trump, elected officials, our nation, our churches, and each other.
2. Rooted in the teachings of Jesus and the prophets, we will tell the truth about the world around us, and we will speak up for those who have been marginalized and taken advantage of.
3. We will actively resist the temptation to overlook or normalize values, speech, and behavior that are in conflict with what Scripture calls us to.
4. In the name of Jesus, we call President-elect Trump to repentance for dishonoring the image of God in others.
5. We will fix our eyes on Jesus and, by the power of the Holy Spirit, redouble our efforts to honor the image of God in all people and to love all our neighbors as ourselves.

Then we have, Cultural-commentator

Russell Moore, a theologian and president of the Ethics & Religious Liberty Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention writing in his 1/20/17 blog, "Christians, Let's Pray for President Trump." It should be known that Moore is no fan of Trump and has publicly voiced his views despite receiving the ire of many of his colleagues. He stated in part; "Consistently, no matter who is in office we are to pray for success. That doesn't mean we pray for all of any leader's ideas to be realized. But it means that we pray that he or she would succeed, would carry out an agenda that leads to the flourishing of the rest of society and, particularly, so that the church may "lead a peaceful and quiet life, godly and dignified in every way." In contemporary American society, we're supposed to want those we like to leave office as heroes and those we don't to bumble and fail. That should never be our attitude.

As Donald Trump takes office as the 45th President of the United States, we should pray that his presidency is a great and good one. That prayer applies to all, whether someone voted for the current president or not. Those who like the new president should pray that he governs so successfully that their hopes are realized. Those who don't like the new president should pray that, at the end of his term if not before, they are surprised that they were wrong."²

We might ask, what's the good of prayer? Oswald Chambers asked this question and had this observation to offer, and it has resonated with me as one of my favorite quotations about prayer: *"It is only when a man flounders beyond any grip of himself and cannot understand things that he really prays. Prayer is an interruption to personal ambition, and no man who is busy has time to pray. What will suffer is the life of God in him, which is nourished not by food but by prayer. If we look on prayer as a means of developing ourselves, there is nothing in it at all, nor do we find that idea of prayer in the Bible. Prayer is other than meditation; it is that which develops the life of God in us."*³

These are words of wisdom.

Regardless of our feelings toward our newly-elected President, we should ultimately pray for him. Remember, that by doing so we'll help develop the life of God in us.

Women in Touch Brunch

What did I miss at the last Wit brunch-

What a lovely way to start a Saturday! Catch up with a few old friends and meet some new friends; enjoy a delicious potluck brunch with a special gourmet offering in a beautifully appointed room; hear a timely devotional; have a chance to win a basket full of surprises for body and soul in a raffle that you enter just by attending!

This month we enjoyed a variety of egg dishes, pastries, fruit and waffles with a banana foster sauce. To help get us started in the new year Tiffiney Cowan & Maureen Andree shared some tips on simplifying our lives and Angela Larsen gave us some great tips on getting our finances organized in order to make our budgets work simply and effectively in our lives.

Each month brings something new, but the fellowship and support of these wonderful women at Highline is always warm and welcoming. Join us the second Saturday in March from 9:30 to 11AM. You will be glad you came!

“Anticipate Sundays” for Sunday School Parents

Last month we started something new; a parent/teacher connecting time at the start of the 9:00 a.m. worship service. Unfortunately, it was also January 1st and we had snow so we only had a handful of children in class that day.

The first Sunday of February we are going to try it again with the goal of continuing the connecting meetings through May. The first Sunday of each month from now until May will be an Anticipate Sunday for students 1st-6th grade and their parents. We will begin Sunday School in the Activity Center from 8:50-9:10 a.m. for an opportunity for the kids to begin connecting with the lesson and for parents and teachers to have an opportunity to connect with each other.

We hope you will join us for this brief meet as we continue to seek ways to partner together.

Love and Respect

This month the learning environment highlighted in the Homefront Magazine is the environment of Love and Respect. I believe there are many ways in which we begin to teach our children what it means to love and respect people, but I think one of the most important is given to us in the Sermon on the Mount. Jesus said “do to others as we would want them to do to us.” (Matt. 7:12) How do we expect our children to show loving respect to us as parents? Now the hard question, do you respect your children in the same way you expect them to respect you? Spend some time this month reflecting on your actions toward your children and ask the Holy Spirit to reveal how to love and respect them as Jesus would if He were you.
